If you notice any of the following signs of a faulty steering and suspension system, contact iAUTOHAUS to find the root of the problem, provide expert service or repair and have you on your way:

- Difficult Turning
- Bouncing Vehicle
- Wandering Wheels
- Siren-Like or Whirring Sound
- Noise When Going Over a Bump
- Uneven Tire Wear

Common Steering Problems

The power steering in your European vehicle can malfunction for a number of different reasons. From fluid leaks to damaged seals; minor problems with your power steering pump can become a dangerous issue if the problem is not immediately repaired. Here are the most common steering problems for Luxury import vehicles:

- Unbalanced Wheels – If you experience a shaking steering wheel as you accelerate, this may be due to unbalanced wheels. Do not ignore this problem; it can become very dangerous at higher speeds.
- Power Steering Pump Failure – A failing power steering pump will cause a moaning sound when you turn and can make the steering wheel very difficult to control.
- Worn Tie Rods – Causing a squeaking sound and making your steering wheel become hard to control; worn tie rods may cause your car to go out of alignment. Tie rods become worn over time and will need to be replaced.

Common Suspension Problems

The components in your fine European auto's suspension wear out over time and will need to be repaired or replaced. Because failing suspension can lead to other, more serious repair issues, make sure to follow-through with maintenance and repair advice from your local European Import Repair Shop. Common suspension problems include:

- Leaking Fluid – If you notice the shocks looking wet or oily during a visual inspection means you have a leakage problem. Although some leakage is normal, a hydraulic fluid spot where your vehicle has been parked indicates that your shocks will need to be replaced as soon as possible.
- Worn Shocks and Struts – Front end dives when accelerating and rear end dipping when stopping indicates your shocks and struts are worn and need to be replaced.
- Broken Spring Coils – Most vehicle's spring coils will last for the life of your car, however they can break. If you notice your car leaning heavily to the side, it may be a bad or broken spring coil.
- Uneven Tire Wear – When a suspension system issue leads to misaligned wheels that travel at a slightly improper angle, your tires can show signs of uneven wear and tear like bald spots.
